Preserve to Educate. Educate to Preserve September, 1998

THE PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

by Ron Bernard

Three years ago the Bernard family moved to Farmington, this most charming and livable town. As a native of Hartford who spent much of my 30 years of working life outside of the United States, I returned to the area looking for a dignified, stable and friendly new home. We found it here, a place where townspeople respect and honor the contributions made by proud and hardworking citizens over more than 350 years.

The Society's #1 objective is to serve the membership. During my term in office I look forward to working with an energetic and committed board to help fulfill our mission to preserve and protect and promote Farmington's invaluable historic legacy. The board has developed a Strategic Plan which outlines our immediate objectives. Come read this Plan at Society Headquarters (or borrow from any Board member). I welcome all comments and suggestions. Support our goals and take part in the year's varied activities!

As the Society completes its 44th year, we are anticipating an exciting period. At long last it appears that we will have a permanent home in the heart of the Village. As we go to press, the executors of the estate of Mr. James Thomson, a long time member of the Society, are completing the transfer of the 18th century Gridley-Case cottages at 138-140 Main Street to the Society.

We are extremely grateful to Mr. Thomson, one of Farmington's true visionaries. Jim purchased the cottages (known affectionately as "the two little houses") in 1970 to protect them from further deterioration and possible doom.

He recognized that these workman's cottages, once ubiquitous here, were perhaps the last of their kind in the state. He knew that these survivors are a special and integral part of Main Street. Mr. Thomson was an outstanding leader, citizen, benefactor and neighbor who cared very much about the community and its future. This gift will stand in tribute to his stewardship, commitment and generosity. Thank you, Jim.

We will turn to you, our members, and to the citizens of the town as we begin the restoration and beautification of this property. We will ask for financial help, for materials and in-kind services, and for advice. We will share the satisfaction of restoring the building and grounds to the standard established by Winchell Smith the 1920's and 1930s. Thank you for helping in any way you can.

September 19-20

Farmington and the Freedom Trail Quilt

September is Freedom Trail Month in Connecticut. This Trail commemorates African-American history in the state. This summer towns along the trail have celebrated this history through a cooperative quilt-making venture which will culminate in the delivery of the quilt squares to the Old State House by bicyclists on September 20. Farmington, of course, as a major station on the Underground Railroad and as the home of the Mendi captives from the Amistad will play a major role in these activities. Peg Yung, FHS vice-president, has coordinated the Society's contribution. Because Farmington boasts twelve sites on the Freedom Trail (each marked by a granite post erected by the FHS), Peg has supervised the design and sewing of twelve squares. The 15 inch squares were designed by Michael Aiezza, Cynthia Cooper, Norma Francini, Jean Johnson, Diane Rose Lipari, Dick Pandora, Sara Prentis, and Peg Yung.

Third Annual Auction

From the sale of everything from fine antiques to white elephants, this auction will enable your Society to raise much needed funds. The popular event will be held again between the Main Library and the Staples House (Monteith Drive). Come and preview the offerings between 10:00 am and Noon. Enjoy lunch and a festive atmosphere. The auction, under the brisk direction of auctioneer Tim Chapulis, will begin at noon and continue through the afternoon under a tent, rain or shine.

Rack your brains and search your attic. The Society receives 100% of the proceeds of items donated (10% from those brought in by Mr. Chapulis). Tax-deductible donations may include furniture (Country, Victorian, Empire etc.), Collectibles (Hummels, Clocks, Glass, Lamps, Local Memorabilia, Autographs etc.) or other items of interest.

Can you help? Pick up donations; supervise a white elephant table? Let Jim Calciano know or leave a message at Headquarters. Jim is the coordinator and driving force behind our auction (676-8558). Also call if you have a donation. Or leave a message at Society Headquarters (677-1645).

Assunta Aiezza, Ruth Bermaat, Penny Davidson Heinlein, Betty Kelly, Diane Rose Lipari, Ruth McCarthy, Priscilla Warren Pyatt, Laurie Regish and Peg Yung were the quilters. The assembled quilt will eventually hang in the Connecticut State Library. Bicyclists will carry quilt squares from Litchfield County to Farmington on Saturday, September 19 where they will be welcomed by a FHS sponsored reception at the Porter Memorial.

Prior to that 3:00 pm reception, we will exhibit the Farmington quilt squares and selections from the FHS Black History project "Speaking for Ourselves" at the Porter Memorial. At 1:30 pm the Freedom Trail Video will be screened. This tape shows Farmington's role in the Underground Railroad and in the support of the Mendi captives. There will be activities for children as well, with 19th century games and Freedom Trail Quilt coloring squares! And Walking Tour Brochures will be available for self-guided tours of Farmington's sites.

Steve Noble, of the Farmington Valley Trails Council, is recruiting and coordinating the bicyclists. Call him at 658-4065 if you can join the riders who will deliver the squares to Hartford on Sept. 20. We should have a good showing from Farmington.

We need homemade cookies, muffins, or other high-carb finger goodies to sustain the bikers and the children. Call Victoria Gerent, Hospitality Chair, at 676-9593 if you can help.

Amistad Descendent visits Farmington

Dr. Michael Pieh, great grandson of Singbe Pieh, the heroic leader of the Mende captives, first came to Connecticut last spring to assist in the awards ceremony at which the FHS was recognized for advancing the study of African American history. Dr. Pieh is a graduate of the University of Liberia Medical School and has a Master's in Public Health from Tulane. Thanks to Charlie Leach, board member, and his wife Joan, Pieh was able to return for a month's externship at New Britain General hospital in July. During that time he lived with the Leaches, and Charlie has passed on news of the family.

Mike and his three brothers are active members of Tegloma, a Mende organization which is attempting to bring some relief to their troubled homeland. Sierra Leone expatriates are now spread across the world in their country's time of crisis. At the month's end, Mike flew to Sierra Leone to distribute $30,000 worth of rice provided by Tegloma. He also took with him a large quantity of medical and surgical supplies provided by New Britain General, funds donated by the First Church of Christ, Farmington, and journals and books for the devastated medical school in Freetown.

He has now returned to Maryland, but hopes to continue graduate medical studies at UCONN next year.

Leach suggests that Dr. Pieh exemplifies a special kind of enthusiasm for history - that of the historian-activist who reveres the past, but is deeply engaged in the struggles of the present. How appropriate that he has returned, though briefly, to Farmington where his ancestor shared with abolitionists here a similar commitment. We can be proud that our Society has helped strengthen the historic bonds which join Farmington and Sierra Leone.
